(a) If the state department or a local health department determines, based on an environmental investigation, that lead hazards in a housing unit have caused or contributed to elevated blood lead levels in an individual, the owner of the housing unit shall submit a remediation plan to the state department or local health department for approval.

(b) The remediation plan required under subsection (a) must include a plan for:

(1) a clearance examination after remediation activities are complete; and

(d) Not later than ninety (90) days after approval of a remediation plan submitted under this section, the owner of a housing unit shall complete the remediation. However, the state department or local health department may grant the property owner an extension of time if the property owner demonstrates that the work cannot reasonably be completed within ninety (90) days and will be completed as expeditiously as possible.

(ii) properly trained in the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development Lead Safe Housing Rule requirements for lead safe work practices training (24 CFR 53.1330(a)(4)).

An owner is taking retaliatory action if the owner, during the term of the rental agreement and without cause:

(1) initiates eviction proceedings;

(2) increases the rent; or

(3) makes other changes to the rental agreement.

(g) This section does not apply to residential property owned by a state educational institution."
